AUBRE DE LAMBERT MAYNARD GUEST LECTURER

KIRBY I. BLAND MD, FACS

Professor, Surgical Oncology, Chair Emeritus, Department of Surgery, Distinguished Faculty Scholar School of Medicine, University Hospital / The Kirklin Clinic, Senior Advisor to the Director, UAB Comprehensive Cancer Center, University of Alabama at Birmingham, Birmingham, AL

BIOGRAPHY

After 16 years of exemplary leadership as chair of the Department of Surgery in the University of Alabama at Birmingham’s School of Medicine, Kirby I. Bland, M.D. stepped down as chair in October 2015. Dr. Bland is Professor in the UAB Department of Surgery and now has terminated patient care, but has continued to conduct translational research, and to educate the next generation of surgeons and mentor young faculty. In April 2016, he was named Chairman Emeritus and Distinguished Faculty Scholar by The Board of Trustees of The University of Alabama to honor his leadership in shepherding the Department of Surgery to outstanding achievements in patient care, research, and education.

An Alabama native, Dr. Bland received his undergraduate degree from Auburn University in 1964. In 1968, he obtained his medical degree from The University of Alabama School of Medicine, and began his internship and residency in General Surgery at the University of Florida before entering the U.S. Army as a Major. After his tour of duty, he completed residency and fellowship training in surgical oncology at M.D. Anderson Cancer Center. Dr. Bland served on the faculties at the University of Louisville and in 1983 was appointed the Professor and Associate Chair for the Department of Surgery at the University of Florida where he practiced and taught Surgery for 10 years. In 1991, while at University of Florida, he was deployed as a naval officer for active duty U.S. Navy with Desert Storm, stationed in Baharain, where he served as Chief of Surgery as a Lt. Colonel in U.S. Naval Medical Corps. He left the military with the rank of Captain, USNMC. In 1993, he accepted the J. Murray Beardsley Professor and Chair and Surgeon-in-Chief at Brown University. In 1999, UAB named him as Chair of the Department of Surgery, Fay Fletcher Kerner Professor and as the Surgeon-in-Chief at UAB Hospitals and The Kirklin Clinic, continuing in this role until October 2015. During his tenure as Chair of the Department, he served as Director of the Division of General Surgery training program from 1999 to 2004, and Deputy Director of the UAB Comprehensive Cancer Center from 2000 to 2009. Dr. Bland presently serves as senior advisor to the Director of the UAB Comprehensive Cancer Center and, Senior Scientist in the UAB School of Medicine. During his tenure as Chair, the Department of Surgery under his leadership the number of faculty increased from 78 to 166; increased annual research funding for the Department to over $16 million; increased the National Institutes of Health research funding to $10.8 million; the Department consistently ranked in the top ten of NIH funding for Departments of Surgery; and increased the surgical faculty and various clinical services at UAB Hospital. Dr. Bland recruited and trained multiple General Surgery and specialty residents, as well as, many faculty who are national leaders in their respective surgical specialty. Also, the Department ranked in the top 10 of National Institutes of Health-supported surgery departments and was the only department of surgery to have three Specialized Project of Research Excellence (SPORE) grants: in Breast, (Bland as PI) Brain and Pancreatic Cancer.

Dr. Bland is active in many professional surgical organizations, serving as president for six national societies including the Association of Academic Surgery (1987-1998), the Society of Surgical Oncology (1996-1997), the Society of Surgical Chairs (2001-2002), the Southern Surgical Association (2005-2006), the Southeastern Surgical Congress (2007-2008), and most recently, the American Surgical Association (2010-2011). He also served as the First Vice- President of the American College of Surgeons (2009-2010), and is a Senior Director of both of the American Board of Surgery and the American Board of Colon and Rectal Surgery. Dr. Bland was a member (1998-2005) and Chair (2003-2005) of the Residency Review Committee (RRC) in Surgery. He is the author or co-author of over 600 scientific journal publications and has been editor or co-editor in the publication of over 45 surgical textbooks. In 2013, The American College of Surgeons awarded him the Owen Wangenstein Award with dedication of the 64th Surgical Forum Edition for contribution to resident and student research and education advocacy. Currently, he serves on the editorial boards of 15 peer-reviewed scientific journals, including The American Journal of Surgery, of which he has been Editor-In-Chief since 2005. He was also chosen by his peers at UAB to deliver the 2014 Distinguished Faculty Lecture, the highest honor bestowed by UAB on a faculty member and in 2016 he delivered the esteemed Constance S. and James A. Pittman Lecture. In 2016, he was awarded the highest presidential honor at UAB, receiving the 2016 President’s Medal from Dr. Ray L. Watts. Dr. Bland has provided leadership for the department in extraordinary ways and led the department, with essential focus upon teaching and Departmental expansion in the late 1990s, and into the 21st century leading to a nationally and internationally recognized group of clinical surgeons focused on research, education, and improvement of patient outcomes that continue with the UAB department today.

Dr. Bland was recognized by numerous clinical publications as one of the Best Doctors in America for consecutive years; and in special recognition of his outstanding achievements was recognized by Who’s Who in Outstanding Executives and Professionals in 1997. He was the recipient of the Society of Surgical Oncology Heritage Award in 2011 for his contributions to surgical oncology including The Society’s James Ewing Award in 1999. He received the honorary Distinguished Alumnus Award from MD Anderson Cancer Center (1994), UAB School of Medicine (1998), Auburn University Lifetime Achievement Award (2012), Leadership Award of the Society of Black Academic Surgeons, (2013); the BA degree (ad eundem) 1994, while Chair at Brown University; and the Lester R. Dragstedt, Physician-Scientist Award on two occasions at the University of Florida. Dr. Bland’s career as a surgical leader, mentor, renowned clinician-scientist, visionary physician is known for novel therapies in breast, and additional solid organ cancers. He has made many significant contributions to the discipline of surgery and to the UAB medical educational community that have immeasurably added to the quality of life in the state of Alabama, as well as nationally. Dr. Bland’s distinguished career has left an indelible impact on the School of Medicine at UAB which has recently created The Kirby I. Bland M.D. Endowed Chair of Surgery (2016) in his honor to expand upon his legacy of excellence in research, medical education, and patient care in surgery.
