

About Us

The Georgia AIDS Education and Training Center (GA AETC) is a program at Morehouse School of Medicine (MSM). MSM is among the nation's leading educators of primary care physicians and has been recognized as a top institution among U.S. medical schools for its social mission.

Morehouse School of Medicine exists to:

- Improve the health and well-being of individuals and communities
- Increase the diversity of the health professional and scientific workforce
- Address primary health care through programs in education, research, and service

With emphasis on people of color and the underserved urban and rural populations in Georgia, the nation, and the world.

The GA AETC is part of the Southeast AIDS Education and Training Center (SE AETC), based at Vanderbilt University in Tennessee. The SE AETC is an eight state consortium that includes Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee. The SE AETC is part of a nationwide network of regional AETCs founded in 1987 by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) to train healthcare providers and disseminate rapidly changing information about HIV/AIDS.

Mission

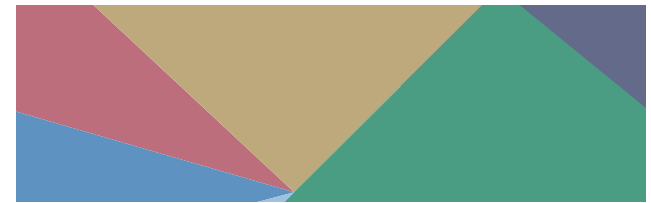

The GA AETC provides custom-designed training and technical assistance to support, motivate, and educate healthcare clinicians, enabling them to provide quality HIV care.

We inspire providers to:

- Improve the HIV Care Continuum
- Increase patient retention in care
- Produce positive patient outcomes
- Promote networking and capacity building

Target Audience

The AETC's goal is to build the capacity of clinicians throughout their careers to care for people living with HIV/AIDS.

Skill building opportunities are available for pre-novice, novice and experienced providers. By increasing the HIV clinical competency of providers, outcomes along the HIV Care Continuum will improve with a greater number of patients diagnosed, engaged in care, on antiretroviral medications and virally suppressed.

Annual HIV Symposium

"Those of us who have been lucky enough to live through the remarkable changes in HIV care over the last 30 years are constantly amazed by the new issues and challenges that this disease presents. The (annual) symposium attempts to address some of these issues by highlighting the most recent basic and clinical studies"

-Stephen P. Raffanti, MD, MPH
Principal Investigator/Medical Director

Classes & Training

Please visit www.seaetc.com/georgia to find out more about our upcoming events!

Some of our most popular events include:

Annual HIV Overview Symposium

The annual symposium brings together clinicians newer to HIV/AIDS for two days of comprehensive instruction on everything related to HIV and HIV care. Topics typically include pathogenesis, antiretroviral treatment, drug resistance, co-morbid conditions, how to take a sexual history, STDs, PrEP, women's health, mental health, and substance abuse.

Webcast Wednesday

The SE AETC Webcast Wednesday occurs weekly and features presenters from all over the Southeast region. The webcast can be attended from the comfort of your own computer. They are also archived for your viewing if you miss the original broadcast. Registration, CE/CME availability, and additional information can be found at www.seaetc.com.

If you have questions about this or other SE AETC programs, please contact smcintosh@msm.edu.
